Section C: Services and Programmes [s5(1)c]

When WEDCO took over responsibility for the vested property, the vast majority of the facilities were structurally unsound, in a very poor state of repair, or not suitable for commercial use. There were no roads to speak of, the fresh water system was inadequate, and the sewage system, where it existed, was archaic and most was discharged overboard. In order to support any potential future development, WEDCO had to invest heavily in building a modern and functional infrastructure capable of accommodating the development plan before it could move forward. And now operates and manages the entire infrastructure at Dockyard.

Due to the historical nature of the buildings within the Dockyard, it has evolved into a destination within the Island that is founded on a mixed-use commercial and residential mix that includes retail, restaurants, attractions and activities that cater to both visitors and locals. The dual cruise ship berths have turned it into the most visited attraction in Bermuda.

The Corporation's development strategy seeks to partner with developers using innovative and creative funding methods that generate revenues with minimum investment by WEDCO. With the exception of major infrastructure development that is in the national interest, such as the Heritage Wharf Complex, the Corporation has been self-sustaining since 1999.
